

June 21, 2018

Equity-seeking activists from across Canada are mobilizing, striking workers are making their voices heard, and legislation to protect workers is being implemented. Read this week's issue for updates on all of these, and a host of other topics.

WHAT'S HOT

Aboriginal & workers of colour attend Unifor Resistance, Reckoning &

TAKE ACTION

Show your support for the 65 striking women in this video. Call or email the Reconciliation conference and leave inspired.

READ MORE

employer and ask them to make a fair offer.

READ MORE

IN THE NEWS

Implementing the CPTPP deal is the wrong move and opens up Canada up to future concessions for workers and trade.

READ MORE

$50,000 administrative fine levied for employer's retaliation, by withholding work, against driver who filed a complaint.

READ MORE

Ontario workers need forward-looking policies, such as cap and trade, to reduce emissions and grow green jobs.

READ MORE

Unifor opposes random testing, remains committed to reliable workplace safety practices that respect workers' dignity.

READ MORE

Social Justice Fund donated $50,000 to help Doctors Without Borders (MSF) as they care for a massive influx of patients.

READ MORE

BARGAINING UPDATES

348 striking miners stand strong against Compass Minerals demands for mandatory overtime and cutting pension benefits.

READ MORE

Four-year tentative agreement reached with Catalyst Paper and Unifor, representing approximately 750 workers in B.C.

READ MORE

Funding cuts at Ontario's only French public broadcaster leads to 37 layoffs, including 11 members, and program cuts.

READ MORE

Privatization of Ontario's gaming industry leads to layoffs of workers in Sudbury, Point Edward and Dresden casinos.

READ MORE

 IN CASE YOU MISSED IT

 RESOURCES

This two-tiered pilot allowing Uber and Lyft at Toronto airport will hurt the livelihood of licensed taxi drivers.

READ MORE

Check out these ways of mobilizing individuals, organizations and government to advance the process of reconciliation.

READ MORE